Indigenous Services Team

Mental Health Services and Programs at Delaware Nation

About the Approach to Care

The Indigenous Services Team works toward meeting community members where they are to make supports more accessible. Some community services are culture-based specifically for Indigenous peoples, while others are mainstream services offered to all communities. We recognize that wellness in Indigenous cultures is about being in balance and harmony and focusing on strengths rather than weaknesses. It is about being connected to family, community and nature. Our Indigenous Service Team aims to deliver whole body healing based on these principles.

Types of Services and Programs

We offer the following services in Delaware Nation.

- Clinical Case Management
- Crisis Services
- Court Support
- Psychotherapy · Cognitive Behavioural Therapy

How to Access Care

Individuals and service providers are able to access or receive more information about services by calling or texting our team Monday to Friday from 8:30 to 5:00.
All services are free and offered to 18+ individuals in the community.

Our prayers to the Creator are for healing and eradication of Covid 19 and the variants that are appearing.

We pray for all those who continue their work to keep communities safe, for those who are doing further research and constant monitoring and all who continue to offer reassurance and comfort
